The National Patient.

A NIGHT OF EASE.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Dr.
Bliss says the President passed a comfortable night, sleeping most of the time after midnight. His pulse this morning at 5 a. m. was 96.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Executive Mansion, 12.30 A. M.—The President's condition has not changed materially since the last bulletin was issued, except there is some increase in the frequency of his pulse. He has taken, with some relish, the nourishment administered by mouth, and has no return of gastric irritation. Pulse 114, temperature 89.5, respiration 18.

HIS REMOVAL DELAYED.
New York, Sept. 5.—A private dispatch from Washington, from a person informed, says the inflamed gland on the President's neck is threatening to slough off, in which case the removal will be delayed.

REMOVAL THE LAST RESORT.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—In connection with the President's removal the following realistic picture from Washington of his condition is of interest. It is no holiday trip the President is about to make, not even that of a patient in the interesting state of convalescence. The removal, if undertaken at all, and there are doubts now in the minds of the doctors as to its expediency, will be the last desperate resort to elude the tightening grasp of death. The President is suffering first, from the unhealed gun shot wound, whose length is estimated at sixteen inches; second, from a compound fracture of the tenth and confusion of the eleventh rib, made by the bullet; third, by the presence in his body of a jagged leaden bullet not encrusted, and traveling slowly downward; fourth, from the poisonous state of his blood; fifth, the gland, which is now the cause as well as result of the trouble of this burrowing abscess in his cheek, is now discharging in seven channels, four of which were opened by the surgeon's knife and three are spontaneous openings, flowing through ear, mouth and nostrils. The next complication is a weak and dyspeptic stomach, which has at times rejected all proffered food, and requires to be always treated in the most delicate manner. For nearly three weeks the President has not swallowed a mouthful of solid food. The seventh item of anxiety and danger is the fearful debility brought on by the injury and its physical consequences; and the eighth is mental debility resulting from local and constitutional troubles. The physicians have been in fear also of the presence of intermittent malarial fever in addition to inevitable traumatic.

The fever that would be occasioned by the proposition to lift him with his bed down a long flight of stairs, carry him some distance by a stretcher and finally convey him two hundred and fifty miles by rail too great for a man so weak and sick. He can scarcely turn his head from side to side, cannot lift his head at all, and is able to move his arms and legs with difficulty and weariness. He is too feeble to bear the excitement of seeing the faces of his most cherished friends. One made a journey from New Mexico especially to see him, but was not let into the room.

No Cabinet officer, with one exception, has seen him since immediately following the shooting. It excites the sufferer beyond his strength to have his children sit by his side. The exertion of speaking pains him and increases his pulse. Food is necessary and he takes it as prescribed as a duty, but has no healthy appetite and relish for what he swallows. His wounds are not constantly painful to an acute degree, but frequent dressings are painful and exhaustive. The suffering caused by the inflamed gland would alone have brought a strong man low. The original injury has made little progress for ten days. It has been kept up in part since the last relapse by a free use of nutritive and stimulating injections. The bowels cannot endure the strain indefinitely, and will break down. If the reader will look at the situation thus reviewed in a light of reason rather than sentiment it will be understood why the doctors mean to remove the President. He is plainly dying where he now is. If removed there is a chance of bare possibility that he may recover, yet he may not live to reach Long Branch. At every sixteen feet after the start on the rails there will come a jolt for that poor body, which holds a jagged bullet. Can we conceive of a more desperate experiment, and yet the journey has been decided upon by the most judicious and experienced surgeons as one of the remaining chances for life. Preparations for removal are being made, but it is learned that the surgeons were very sympathetic about removal, and did not commence to prepare for the journey until about noon. They were urged to do this by members of the family, who said: "It has been definitely decided by the surgeons and Cabinet that the President must be removed, that to remain here is death. Every day's delays, involves greater risks, as it also involves danger of encountering an equinoctial storm at Long Branch." The surgeons, after this admonition, proceeded with their work. It is learned from authority that cannot be questioned, that they are very reluctant to undertake the journey. There is no man assigned for this except their fear of injuring their professional reputation by taking him on such a journey and having something happen. He is now expectorating pus, and this may mean some new lung complication.

TO BE MOVED TO-MORROW.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Dr. Bliss says the President had a very comfortable afternoon. His pulse, although slightly accelerated, is firm. He considered him better than at this time yesterday.
He manifested interest in his proposed removal to-morrow morning, and is desiring to know all the details. Dr.
Boynton considers the President better to-day than for the past week. His temperature is slightly above normal.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR MOVING THE PA-TIENT.

Dr. Bliss just said: The President is doing nicely and that there was nothing to complain of, and he would be removed as soon as possible. The surgeons will visit his car this afternoon. The plan of moving him at night is discus-ed, and it is decided on. It is generally believed about the Mansion that due notice will be given and that he will not be moved secretly. The sole purpose is to avoid noise or bustle. He will be removed early in the morning, or after sundown. The railroad tracks are being run from the Baltimore & Potomac depot on Sixth street, to the edge of the asphalt pavement, on Pen-sylvania avenue, so the President's car may be run out on the street to facilitate the moving of the patient from the vehicle which carries him from the White House. News will be sent to the White House several times a day, and bulletins will be issued as heretofore.
Otherwise no particulars.

FURTHER PREPARATIONS.

Preparations for the President's journey to Long Branch are rapidly progressing, beginning at midnight. A gang of men are busily laying track on Sixth street, and at ten o'clock this morning they had two hundred yards of the extension of the Baltimore & Potomac track completed to Pennsylvania avenue, so that the President's bed can be placed on a wagon at the White House and the wheels need not leave the asphalt pavement until the wagon is by the side of the car. All three of cars, which are to make up the President's train are now at the depot, and workmen are busy putting finishing touches on the East Lake combination car which was sent from Altoona. Pa. last night. The seats have all been taken out and the car has been thoroughly renovated. A false top has been put in a few inches below the regular roof of the car in order to give air an opportunity to circulate between it and the roof, so as to keep the car cool.

WHO SHALL BE ACTING PRESIDENT.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 5.—The Evening Gazette prints a lengthy interview with Senator Voorhees, of which the following points are most striking: After promising that the President's recovery might extend through his entire remaining term, and that there were no precedents in American history matter. The question first to be settled is, who shall decide the question of inability? Certainly not the Vice-President, who might, if too aspiring, refuse to turn over the office when once he had assumed it. It would also be likely to change hands on very slight inability if, as once in history, the Vice-President was at open war with the President. Neither have the Cabinet power to declare the President's inability or to invoke the Vice-President to act in his place. They could not do so under the constitution, or under any U. S. statute. The question must be decided by Congress, who meet in regular session in December. The government is so well constructed, strong and harmonious, that no interest will suffer if the President should not be able to lift his hand or speak until then. Those who would raise needless difficulties or present fictitious questions would meet heavy condemnation at the hands of the people. The safest and simplest way for Congress to do would be to create a commission of say five members, embracing the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, Secretary of State, Surgeon General of the army, and two attending surgeons, whose duty it would be to determine whether the President was unable.

Meeting for Prayer.

Denver, Sept. 5.—The following explains itself. A telegram to Pitkin was received yesterday noon, and the answer forwarded immediately:

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—To His Excellency Gov. Pitkin: At the request of a large number of citizens of Pennsylvania, I have named Tuesday next, between the hours of ten a. m. and noon, when they are invited to meet for the purpose of public prayer for the restoration to health of President Garfield. I venture to hope that you may see your way clear to summon people in your State to unite with us in an appeal for the divine mercy and aid to the nation and the several States.
(Signed) HENRY M. HOYT.

Denver, Sept. 4, 1881.—To Hon. Henry M. Hoyt, Governor of Pennsylvania: I have your letter of the 3d inst. in your suggestion that the day be set apart for the purpose of inviting the public throughout the nation to unite in a day of public prayer for the restoration to health of President Garfield, and on behalf of the people of the state of Colorado. We trust that the nation's prayers may be speedily answered, and the hope of our country in the President's recovery may be soon realized. The brief period until Tuesday, September 6th, will not, however, give us any opportunity to carry your suggestion into general effect. Our settlements are scattered, and many of them are remote from telegraph and railway, so that it would be impossible to issue a proclamation that could be carried into general effect in this State on the day you name.
(Signed) H. A. W. TABOR, Lieutenant Governor and Acting Governor.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 5.—Governor Jarvis yesterday issued a proclamation inviting the people of the State to assemble at their respective places of worship Tuesday, Sept. 6th, between the hours of ten and noon, to unite in prayer for the recovery of the President.

The Apache War.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—A Tucson dispatch says the Citizen has the following dispatch:

Camp Thomas Sept. 5.—Lieutenant Stanton, Sixth Cavalry, with thirty-three men as escort, reached here from Camp Apache last evening about 7 o'clock with a dispatch as follows:

Fort Apache, Sept. 1.—General Carr, Colonel Sixth Cavalry, left here August 29th with troops of D and E Companies, Sixth Cavalry, and Indian scouts, 102 men and six officers, intending to arrest the Apache medicine man who was endeavoring to get the Indians to break out. He reached Cibicu creek, forty-five miles west of here, at 3 p. m. on the 30th. They found 600 Indians encamped and arrested the medicine man without resistance. The command then went a few miles from the main Indian village and camped, and the pack train was unloaded, when Indians began arriving from every point, but kept along the range of bluffs, some three hundred yards off. Some Indian scouts having left the camp and come into camp Captain Hentig ordered them to leave. While doing so an Indian turned and fired, killing Captain Hen-tig instantly. The fight then became general. The troops formed a skirmish line, driving the Indians back some distance. The herders were killed by the volleys and the herd stampeded.
The fight began at 4 o'clock, lasting nearly three hours, until darkness, when the Indians drew off toward their own camp. It is impossible to tell how many Indians were killed. A council was held, and it was decided that it was impossible to hold the position against such a large force. There was but one way out of the camp, through a bad canyon. The herd was rounded up and it was found the D troops had lost thirty-three horses; E troop eight, pack train seven mules and several badly shot. They hastily gathered up the dead and found seven men and one officer, Captain Hentig, killed. They buried them inside the tent of Gen. Carr which, with everything but the saddles and ammunition, was left on the field as a blind to cover retreat. Three badly wounded soldiers were placed on horses. At 11 o'clock the command started in retreat for this post. One of the wounded men died at four the next morning. The Indians did not follow, evidently thinking them at Cibicu. Gen. Carr made a forced march, not stopping anywhere until he reached the post, at 4 p. m. on August 31st. The troops were badly used up, with hunger and fatigue. The hostiles are swarming through the country and came within a mile of this post this morning, burned several buildings, stampeded a large herd of cattle, and then drew off to the mountains. The cousers who started out were killed within twenty miles of here, also several more out on escort duty, besides four civilians. This is reported by friendly Indians. The Mormon settlers north of us must be suffering heavily. We can do nothing but hold the post until reinforcements reach us. The Indians cut the telegraph line every few miles.

LATER ADVICES.

At 2 o'clock the Indians began firing into a party at the Graveyard, who were burying their dead, and drove them into the post, then fired into the post from the bluffs on every side. The troops formed a skirmish line around the entire camp, keeping them out of the post. The fight lasted until dark, when the Indians drew off. Capt. Gordon, successor to Capt. Hentig, was wounded in the leg. The firing during the first hour was very heavy from the hostiles. We believe we can keep them out of the post, but no more.

Sept. 2, 10 a. m.—We still hold the fort. The fight yesterday was very warm for about two hours. We have sent messages by couriers. Corporal Wagoner on the night of the 12th, and Private Welsh at 4 a. m. on the 31st; also by Owens, mail carrier, at noon on the 31st. Welsh is the only one who has reached Thomas. He started on his return on the morning of Sept. 1st, and has not been heard from since. The following is a list of the killed: Capt.
O. G. Hentig, Sixth Cavalry; Privates Saundagger, Sullivan, Miller, Livingston, Bird and Faran, of Company D, Sixth Cavalry. Wounded list: C. G.
Gordon, Sixth Cavalry, in leg. of serious; Sergeant T. McDonald, Company E, Sixth Cavalry, right leg, badly.

Sept. 3, 6 p. m.—Nobles and Colville were driven back last night while trying to get through to Thomas Stanton's company. Everything is quiet, awaiting reinforcements. Four companies of the Sixth Cavalry are enroute. Three of them must have reached there by this time.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—The following was received at the military headquarters:

Fort Apache, Sept. 2, 8:30 p. m.—To Adjutant General Whipple, Barracks, Arizona: Pursuant to the order from the Commanding General, dated Aug.
30th, to arrest the Indian doctor, Nac-kay Dilkline, as soon as practicable, and the formal request from the agent, dated the 14th, to arrest or kill him, or both I first hoped to arrest him when he came to hold his dances and incantations here, but he did not keep his appointment. I then sent an Indian scout with a message that I wanted to see him Sunday, Aug.
28th. I received an evasive answer from him and next day marched with troops of D and E, Sixth Cavalry, and a company of Indian scouts of the command, numbering six officers and seventy-nine soldiers.

The Arizona Massacre.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—The latest advices throw a doubt on the general massacre of Carr's command having occurred. It is now reported that Lieutenants Cruse and Stanton, and probably other officers, succeeded in making their escape, and that only Captain Hentig and some dozen enlisted men were killed. No particulars yet.
